Name:

Day One Reporters Risked Their Lives

Part 1: Silent read

Find out about reporters who lost their lives in the Iraq War. Read silently.

Freedom of the press is protected by the United States Constitution. That means reporters in the U.S. can cover the news without fearing punishment. However, reporters risked their lives to report on the Iraq War.

During the Iraq War, over 150 reporters were killed. According to the Committee to Protect Journalists, this death toll is the highest on record for any war, ever.

In a war, reporters expect to be in danger. Some will get hit by crossfire, get caught in an air raid, or be in the wrong place at the wrong time. In Iraq, however, journalists were targets. They were abducted and killed by groups who did not want the world to know what was happening in Iraq.

Most of the reporters killed in Iraq were Iraqis. Some of them worked for Iraqi news groups. Others worked for international news groups like CBS News. On the ground in Iraq, reporters faced many dangers. They could get caught in active combat. They were targets for murder. They were also targets for kidnapping because some groups fighting in Iraq held reporters for ransom to get money. Because of the dangers, American TV and newspapers often used Iraqi reporters to gather the news.

These Iraqi reporters often kept their job a secret. Some reporters said they could not carry notebooks or even tell their families about their work. But they kept reporting the news. These brave men and women helped bring the story of the Iraq War to the rest of the world.

Passage 5 p. 25

// one minute

Part 2: First timed read	WPM
--------------------------	-----

Freedom of the press is protected by the United States Constitution. That means reporters in the U.S. can cover the news without fearing punishment. However, reporters risked their lives to report on the Iraq War.

During the Iraq War, over 150 reporters were killed. According to the Committee to Protect Journalists, this death toll is the highest on record for any war, ever.
air raid, or be in the wrong place at the wrong time. In Iraq, however, journalists were	99 targets. They were abducted and killed by groups who did not want the world to know	115
what was happening in Iraq.	120
Most of the reporters killed in Iraq were Iraqis. Some of them worked for Iraqi news	136 groups. Others worked for international news groups like CBS News. On the ground in	150
Iraq, reporters faced many dangers. They could get caught in active combat. They were	164 targets for murder. They were also targets for kidnapping because some groups fighting	177 in Iraq held reporters for ransom to get money. Because of the dangers, American TV and	193
newspapers often used Iraqi reporters to gather the news.	202
These Iraqi reporters often kept their job a secret. Some reporters said they could not	217 carry notebooks or even tell their families about their work. But they kept reporting the	232
news. These brave men and women helped bring the story of the Iraq War to the rest of	250
the world.	252

Part 3: Comprehension and discussion

What were some dangers reporters faced in Iraq?

What country did most of the murdered reporters come from?

Passage 5 p. 26

Day One Reporters Risked Their Lives

Part 4: Phrase-cued reading

- Read the passage out loud in phrases to your partner.
- → Pause at each / mark for a phrase.
- → Also pause at each // mark that shows the end of a sentence.

Freedom of the press is protected by the United States Constitution. // That means / reporters in the U.S. can cover the news / without fearing punishment. // In Iraq, / however, / reporters risked their lives to report on the Iraq War. //

During the Iraq War, / over 150 reporters were killed. // According to the Committee to Protect Journalists, / this death toll is the highest on record / for any war, / ever. //

In a war, / reporters expect to be in danger. // Some will get hit by crossfire, / get caught in an air raid, / or be in the wrong place at the wrong time. // In Iraq, / however, / journalists were targets. // They were abducted and killed / by groups who did not want the world to know what was happening in Iraq. //

Most of the reporters killed in Iraq / were Iraqis. // Some of them worked for Iraqi news groups. // Others worked for international news groups / like CBS News. // On the ground in Iraq, / reporters faced many dangers. // They could get caught in active combat. // They were targets for murder. // They were also targets for kidnapping / because some groups fighting in Iraq held reporters for ransom / to get money. // Because of the dangers, / American TV and newspapers often used Iraqi reporters to gather the news. //

These Iraqi reporters often kept their job a secret. // Some reporters said they could not carry notebooks / or even tell their families about their work. // But they kept reporting the news. // These brave men and women / helped bring the story of the Iraq War to the rest of the world. //

☐ I read the passage in phrases out loud to my partner.

Passage 5 p. 27